

Thoughts On Alain de Botton

Post by “Cassius” of June 29, 2019 at 6:03 PM

A grass root movement of individuals yes, but as far as i have seen no evidence of organized communities. The Villa in Herculaneum might possibly qualify but even that may be a stretch. I think the issue is whether there were organized communities outside in the garden in Athens, and I have never seen any reliable evidence of any at all.

Had there been organization it might have been possible for Epicurean philosophy to survive longer than it did.