

"When Science Returns to the Hellenic Worldview: Empathy and Consciousness Redeemed" - Blog Post By Elli

Post by "Cassius" of November 27, 2025 at 8:24 PM

"When Science Returns to the Hellenic Worldview: Empathy and Consciousness Redeemed"

This Cosmos is not a reflection of some imaginary idea of a perfect world. It is not a shadow, not a copy. It is experience. It is relationship. It is our only real field of encounter.

And philosophy, when it is true, does not save man from the world - it returns him to it. It brings him back, freed from the chains of Lethe (oblivion), whenever he himself has placed them upon his own being. For in Greek, truth - alētheia - is precisely that which escapes oblivion.

Epicurean Saying 32

"The veneration of the wise man is a great blessing to the one who venerates him."

Blog Article

"When Science Returns to the Hellenic Worldview: Empathy and Consciousness Redeemed"

Friedrich Nietzsche, in his work The Antichrist, denounces Paul as the inventor of Christianity and an enemy of Rome's grandeur. But perhaps Nietzsche himself misunderstood what Paul truly fought against. Rome may have been the aching tooth, but Greece was its root. And Paul - not as a scientific dentist (for he knew nothing of science, of course) - but more like the last illiterate barber in the neighborhood, he grabbed the pliers and performed a full extraction on <https://www.epicureanfriends.com/thread/4825-when-science-returns-to-the-hellenic-worldview-empathy-and-consciousness-redeeme/?postID=37959#post37959> the tooth that tormented...

Elli

November 18, 2025 at 2:39 PM