Welcome MCTIMKAT!

He tells me --

As I approach my 70th birthday, I have been reviewing my life up to this milestone point, and in so doing have developed a strong desire to consolidate the experiences of those years into a coherent philosophy of living to guide me through whatever years remain. While I don't think cherry-picking this or that element from the various philosophical schools in order to piece together an amalgam that suits me is wise, I do think that I need to assemble a coherent and compatible framework that I can follow with confidence that it is the one most beneficial to me. I enjoyed looking through your materials and resources, and know they will help me in that endeavor.
