I also think Plato was the „Golden“ because he values people in categories of gold, silver and bronze/iron

Gold: Elites, King/ Philosopher

Silver: Warriors

Bronze/Iron: Worker, farmers

And oh, of course Plato was in the golden category ☐☐

I think „the Golden“ is a play on this arrogant and inhumane assessment / valuation of people which is done in every totalitarian state. Popper saw Platos Politeia as core of every totalitarian state.
