Invocation of Venus

According to tradition, Lucretius was the son of Lucipatrus, the ancestor of the family together known as the Lucretii, of which he was one of the only figures who were not killed or enslaved when Lucius was destroyed.

The Lucretii ultimately came to Italy and formed a major dynasty out of which came, over 2000 hundred years later, Roman and British, the traditional founders of Rome – the first being Romulus, the ancestral mother of the Romans.
