

Episode 156 - Lucretius Today Interviews Dr. Emily Austin - Part One

Post by “Raphael Raul” of July 7, 2026 at 10:36 PM

Cassius, when I lived in Paris in the 1980s studying at L'Académie des Beaux, I went to Rome many times and had the opportunity to dig at the Roman Forum with an archaeological expedition through the American Academy in Rome. These and many other wonderful memories I have are from exactly 40 years ago, and they are clearer than what I did last Tuesday. So, yes, go to Rome, visit Venice, live in Paris if you can. If you can't, enjoy what you have: a walk on a soft summer night, a game of chess with a friend, dinner with your elderly mother.