it is important to set aside other spiritual/philosophical notions and ideas such as "Nirvana/bodhi/satori" etc.

Good point. While there may be superficial similarities to these notions, those fall apart upon any closer examination. There are completely different underpinnings and frameworks.

after having fully grasped this new way of mentally relating to the idea of death, it is impossible to lose this understanding.

Exactly! Well put.

a kind of fearlessness that the gods possess.

I've never heard it put quite that way before. I like that idea.
