

Where I'm At Philosophically (Questioning Objectivism)

Post by "Elayne" of November 4, 2019 at 7:53 PM

Kyle, as a "cradle atheist" raised in Alabama, I think you are on the right track. For a long time, I have been annoyed by the secular groups having a "Day of Reason" to counter the national day of prayer-- why not a Day of Evidence?

Epicurus was the first person I "met", through his work, who seemed on the same page with me about that. The evidence of our senses (and instrumental extensions) and our feelings are primary. Reason is a secondary tool.

I hope you will choose this philosophy! At least, try it out and see how it feels ☐☐.