Necessity of existence of all possibilities is consequence of infinity of universe. What forbids those possibilities to realize when appropriate bodies meet each other at some place. Appropriate bodies cannot be exhausted because there are infinite. There is sufficient amount for space and time for them to make such and such combinations.

Hiram: exactly. And according to Epicurus gods are in the range of limited number of combinations. Nothing in our experience forbids them to exist and physics shows us that they can exist. This is how in general terms Epicurus thought about gods.
