

Episode Four - Recap of Opening Sections of Book One

Post by “Godfrey” of February 8, 2020 at 7:26 PM

Exactly.

Also I think it needs to be emphasized that an individual is an integrated biological system, of which the feelings are a part. The Canon is the most useful means to describe that system (at least that I'm aware of). A person is not a brain in a vat, as might be inferred from idealized reason.