

Reducing "Tranquilism" to its Absurd Conclusion

Post by "Godfrey" of March 7, 2020 at 3:19 PM

I totally agree: once one gets a proper understanding of the philosophy it makes the idealist viewpoint look silly.

Have to point out though that one needn't be young and healthy and vibrant to benefit!

Which leads me to the rumination that perhaps EP is a particularly nice fit for one who is older. Not only does life experience provide additional verification, but there's a certain joy in aging well which meshes nicely with EP. And as the end gets nearer it's nice to have your facts straight.