

Consequentialism & Moral Relativism within the context of Pleasure-filled Philosophy

Post by “Hiram” of March 11, 2020 at 1:41 PM

Mutual advantage is the key concept in Epicurean social ethics. If instead of speaking of "morality" or in abstract terms, we refer to concrete social problems and seek to evaluate the issues of mutual advantage concretely and directly and in detail, the moral problems become clearer and easier to address from an Epicurean perspective. The following essay might be worth studying in detail by the Epicureans:

Reconciling Justice and Pleasure in Epicurean Contractarianism - John J. Thrasher

<http://www.johnjthrasher.com/wp-content/upl...actarianism.pdf>