

Epicurean Rings / Jewelry / Coins / Mementos

Post by “Joshua” of March 26, 2020 at 11:01 AM

A good point, Eugenios; and another just occurred to me. Bligh was the governor of a major new British Colony. He must have entertained all kinds of people. Some, no doubt, would have given gifts. Perhaps to curry favor, perhaps as tokens of esteem.

Or this; perhaps the ring has a more direct association with the the Rum Rebellion trial. A gift from an Epicurean friend gently encouraging him to get out of politics.