

Getting Started - Initial Thoughts on 3D Printing

Post by "Cassius" of April 1, 2020 at 5:38 AM

Depending on the size and the material used, the result from the mesh I produced back then was decently acceptable. But the technology of the camera resolution I used, and the free adobe (I think) software to render the mesh, I am sure is vastly better now. I think I know at least one person who produced another mesh so I will see what I can find, but the best thing to do would be to start comparing notes on the current best way to do this.

I have a friend who produced this version a few years ago. I need to ask him if he used his own mesh or the one I did

