Eugenios I am to blame for that use of that particular quote. Haris submitted the text to me without a graphic, and I put together the final article in a hurry this morning, using that quote, made from this version: http://wiki.epicurism.info/Letter to Menoeceus/ , due to the "by pleasure we mean" structure of the sentence.

Would you suggest a better passage that uses ataraxia itself?

As to your questions in the second paragraph, I don't have a good ultimate answer but I think those comments go in a promising direction, especially in light of thinking about the distinction made by Konstan we have been discussing recently: Managing Expectations In The Study of Epicurus
