

Introductory Video on Epicurean Gods and the Three Responses

Thanks Don! So part of what you are saying as to singular / plural is that Epicurus seemed to be more referring to "divinity" (even, the "concept of divinity") rather than to a particular god or gods?

I tend to think that would be especially true in the Principal Doctrines, in that my view of them, especially the first ones, is that they are more on the order of logical propositions about death, divinity, pain, and pleasure, than they are specific assertions about particular instances.
