

Plotina and Hadrian

Post by “Joshua” of September 22, 2020 at 12:54 PM

The recent thread on Julius Caesar has me thinking about Trajan, Hadrian and Plotina. There are, I think, two letters of Plotina (one to Hadrian and one to the Epicurean community in Athens [?]), and then Hadrian's reply/decreed. Do we have these somewhere? I don't see much on Plotina here.

Post by “Joshua” of September 22, 2020 at 12:56 PM

I see Cassius has a write-up here, I haven't read through it yet.

Post by “Cassius” of September 22, 2020 at 12:57 PM

Great point. I know I have a blurb at NewEpicurean on that letter from Plotina asking for help with the Epicurean school but we need that here, and to research this further.

Post by “Cassius” of September 22, 2020 at 12:59 PM

<https://newepicurean.com/the-ideal-epic...emperor-trajan/>

Haven't look at that in a while and I remember now there was some doubt in my mind as to whether that photo was mislabeled.

As soon as I get to my desktop I will make sure we have a place for Plotina under the famous Epicureans section.