

Shakespeare's "Julius Caesar"

Post by "Cassius" of October 24, 2024 at 11:05 AM

Info from Joshua:

Julius Caesar | Act 4, Scene 2

If you do a control F search for 'Portia' it will take you to the part of the scene where Brutus first informs Cassius of his wife's death, and subsequently pretends not to know of it when a messenger brings news.

---

Post by "Bryan" of October 24, 2024 at 11:31 AM

Thank you for sharing. It is strange that Cassius is still present when Brutus is told the news. It almost seems as though Brutus had and believed some vision about her death, and then he just was not surprised when the messenger confirmed what he already "knew."