

A Lovely Little Way to Refer to Memories

Post by “Don” of March 30, 2025 at 12:17 AM

"ag dul siar ar bhóithrín na smaointe"

The Irish (Gaelic) phrase for reminiscing.

Literally, "going back down the little lane of thoughts; going back on the road of ideas" bhóithrín "a small, quite often badly maintained track or lane, commonly found in rural areas."

Think of English "taking a trip down memory lane" but I like that idea that, even if the road is badly maintained, you're still going travel down it to visit a cherished memory.

(VERY roughly pronounced : ag dool she-ar air vo-run na shmin-cha)