

Forum Glitch 09/22/25 And Recovery - Notice To Users

Post by “Cassius” of September 22, 2025 at 7:24 PM

I apologize to everyone who may have been affected, but unfortunately we have had to reset the forum to 3:20 AM Eastern time on September 21, 2025.

I have been monitoring posting and I do not think much new posting has been lost, and I am addressing the one post I know about with that user.

However I am not able to determine what may have transpired today in private conversations, so if you posted anything over the last 24 hours please check to be sure it is still available if it is of importance.

I very much apologize for this, which resulted from an update to a forum feature that has now been properly updated. It should not be necessary to deal with problems like this very often, but they do occur, so as a reminder if you do invest lots of time in composing material that is irreplaceable, it's always prudent to keep a local copy.

If anyone sees that they posted something in the last 24 hours that appears to have been deleted, please let me know and I will see if recovery is possible.

Thanks as always for your participation at EpicureanFriends.com!
