

Improving Website Navigation and User Interface

Post by “Kalosyni” of November 28, 2025 at 1:35 PM

Hi all! I'm excited to share that I started a project to improve website navigation, and no doubt that Cassius will implement these ideas in the best manner as he sees fit. I'd like to eventually see changes in the drop-down menu in the future, but in the meantime we'll be adding this "Website Overview" as a page (as well as adding it to the homepage) ...It will have clickable links and more of a "bird's eye view" of what we have to offer. This is still a work in progress, as Cassius will be adding the code to the website to create the card view (boxes).

Thank you Kalosyni and thanks to others such as Raphael Raul who have suggested navigation revisions.

There's always going to be a tradeoff due to vastly different screen sizes. We're currently a little more heavily weighted towards larger screens given our use of the top dropdown menus and the sidebars. Those aren't nearly as useful on a phone or portrait size screen, so this card view look will make it much easier for mobile users to get an overview of the site.

A second draft of how this may look is here:

Everyone should feel free to suggest addition of new "Cards" or rearrangements of items on existing cards. It won't be possible to accommodate all requests, but if you think something should be arranged differently then it's very possible others think the same, and we might not pick it up if someone doesn't suggest the possibility.

One of the main purposes of this format is to help those who access the site on cell phones in a narrow portrait mode. Drop-down menus and sidebars don't work very well on that format, but different people use different formats so if you see something that can be improved let us know.

Just a head-up, that the sub-forum "Sunday Zoom Meetings" has been moved, and is now located under the Welcome threads in the very top forum. (Fourth Sunday is open to all members and Weekly Sundays is Level 3 ...and Level 2 by moderator approval.)

You can also find a link in the drop-down toolbar under "More".
