

Smiling at Death

Post by “wbernys” of July 26, 2026 at 12:56 PM

Saw this at EPCOT today. Not Epicurean but it reminded me of a quote by Diogenes of Oenoanda where he says

"we ought to make statues of the gods genial and smiling, so that we may smile back at them"

I like how Mexicans do this for day of dead. Despite not being Epicurean it does feel like a good Epicurean practice.