

Epicureanism - Busts of Venus, Athena, Epicurus

Post by "Hiram" of March 30, 2019 at 10:10 AM

<http://societyofepicurus.com/epicureanism-busts/>

Post by "bradley.whitley" of March 30, 2019 at 2:19 PM

Thanks

Post by "michelepinto" of March 31, 2019 at 12:57 PM

This bust have made by an artist called "Monica Rafaeli". She is a friend of mine. She made it for me as a copy of the one of the "Musei Capitolini" in Rome. Now she is quite famous, so if some one wants a copy it will be quit expensive.

Post by "michelepinto" of March 31, 2019 at 12:58 PM

I always immaginated Epicurus on a wheel chair. It is strage for me to see a sculture standing.

Post by "Cassius" of March 31, 2019 at 1:47 PM

Wow I liked that sculpture - good job! Michele you have a copy of Bernard Frischer's Scuplted Word and his discussions and photos of the seated Epicurus? That's they way I primarily see him too, but surely in his younger years he was not always so, and I would like to picture him in his prime rather than in his declining years.

Post by “michelepinto” of March 31, 2019 at 3:18 PM

I don't think Epicurus would call his old age "Decline". He also considered happy the day of his death.

But you are right, we can depict Epicurus in the moment we prefer.

Post by “michelepinto” of March 31, 2019 at 3:23 PM

Quote from Cassius

Michele you have a copy of Bernard Frischer's Scuplted Word and his discussions and photos of the seated Epicurus?

Sorry, no. 😞